

Overview: Dean's Counsel

The Dale E. Fowler School of Law at Chapman University has experienced an unprecedented era of growth and achievement since its founding in 1995. In particular, we have earned a reputation for providing a highly-individualized, practice-ready legal education that prepares our graduates to hit the ground running as lawyers and make an impact in the communities they serve.

The Fowler School of Law Dean's Counsel plays an integral role in continuing this remarkable upward trajectory. The Dean's Counsel is a group of successful alumni who will provide advice to the law school dean and financially support the Fowler School of Law. All members will be asked to contribute between $1,000 and $2,500 annually to student scholarships. Membership in the Dean's Counsel includes:

- VIP invitations and seating at events at Fowler School of Law;
- An intimate breakfast and a dinner with the dean and other members, providing a great opportunity to network with other successful alumni;
- Commemorative Fowler School of Law items;
- All members will be recognized on a donor wall outside the dean's office.
