Controversial Campus Statues&Civil Discourse

HIST 329
THURSDAY
4-6:50 PM

Protests concerning campus statues have roiled universities in Africa, Asia, Europe, and the United States (including Chapman University). In this course students will examine the history of these controversies to develop a broader perspective on contemporary debates surrounding campus memorials. They will also develop a public history project (podcast, walking tour, website, exhibit) examining Chapman's campus statues, emphasizing the role of civil discourse in discussing differences in interpretation.
