As humans, we have a unique connection to the universe we live in. We are connected on levels that we've barely begun to understand. Somehow, the same atoms that create that matter around us also give rise to our conscious thoughts. When we evaluate our own personal realities through a quantum lens, we can begin to understand and see the universe not as it is, but as we are. We are led to the possibility of a cosmic consciousness; wherein we are mere pieces of the same universe that we are experiencing everyday.
