The Chapman University School of Pharmacy will engage student pharmacists in science-based, personalized, interdisciplinary education. Students will learn from world-class faculty clinicians and researchers dedicated to flawless patient care and advancing community health.

ABOUT THE DOCTOR OF PHARMACY (PHARM.D.) PROGRAM

The Pharm.D. is earned through a three-year, accelerated program consisting of eight, 15-week trimesters delivered year round.

- Learning-centered instruction with many class periods devoted to discussion and active learning exercises
- Apple technology and electronic access to textbooks included in tuition
- Curriculum includes small groups and team-based learning

WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT

- You will begin your lifelong pursuit of answers to best practices for human health, patient safety, drug efficiency, and your role in the creation of those solutions.
- You will receive a Doctor of Pharmacy (Pharm.D.) degree that prepares you for licensure to practice pharmacy in a wide range of settings. You may also choose to continue your studies in advanced practice specialization or research.
- You will learn through a unique “flipped classroom” approach where you acquire basic knowledge outside class and apply that knowledge to real cases and problems in class with expert faculty help.
- You will participate in patient care simulations with students in other health care programs to develop leadership and teamwork skills.
