Mission Statement

The College of Educational Studies' graduate programs in Counseling and School Psychology seeks to develop skilled and reflective school-based mental health professionals who are effective change agents and advocates for youth of varying abilities, cultural heritages and socioeconomic backgrounds.

Big Ideas

- 1. Collaboration
- 2. Oral Communication
- 3. Self-reflection and tolerance for complexity and ambiguity
- 4. Written Communication
- 5. Commitment to service and advocacy
- 6. Building solutions for children through an appreciation of their strengths and resources
- 7. Understanding children both as individuals and as participants in systems
- 8. Time management and organizational skills

1. Collaboration

Effective collaboration involves working cooperatively with others, often in groups or teams, to effect positive change for pupils. Collaborative workgroups and group projects are an important part of CSP coursework. To the extent possible, groups represent different disciplines (teaching, counseling, and school psychology), providing students with the experience of working in multidisciplinary teams.

2. Oral Communication

School psychology also requires well-developed oral communication skills. School psychologists have many opportunities to speak articulately and convincingly in front of diverse groups and in various situations (one-to-one with teachers, students, and parents; team meetings and formal inservice presentations). Class activities such as role-plays and oral presentations are designed to provide students with practice and training with their oral communication skills. Students learn to conduct effective oral presentations and are given specific feedback on their performances.

3. Self-reflection and tolerance for complexity and ambiguity

Reflection is the ability to step back and make explicit the logic underlying one's actions. Effective reflection implies going beyond the application of technique and is critical to being able to improvise when confronted with complex or puzzling situations. Students in the School Psychology Program self-evaluate and deconstruct their actions to better understand their underlying logic and behaviors. School psychologists are also often faced with complex and ambiguous situations where there is no clear answer. Tolerance for complexity and ambiguity allows students to be patient during the problem solving process and not rush to act before they fully understand a situation.

4. Written Communication

The profession of school psychology requires effective writing skills e.g., memos, reports, lesson plans, and grant applications. Writing is often the most effective avenue to convey critically and reflectively the knowledge and skills learned in coursework and applied in the field. Course assignments include substantive written work, including research papers that conform to the APA format, reflection papers, report writing, and the creation of applied materials such as parent handouts.

5. Commitment to service and advocacy

School psychologists are first advocates for the students they serve. To advocate for someone or something means to support or promote their interests. In School Psychology we promote the interests of the children we serve by giving voice to their best interests, especially when they cannot speak for themselves.

- 6. Building solutions for children through an appreciation of their strengths and resources
 We believe that effective solutions to a problem involve building on an understanding of children's strengths and resources as well as understanding their problems and needs.
- 7. Understanding children both as individuals and as participants in systems
 Children are embedded in multiple systems, including families, schools, classrooms, and communities. School psychologists help children be more successful in school and life by helping these systems become more competent.

8. Time management and organizational skills

School psychology is a complex and demanding career that requires practitioners to manage multiple projects at multiple sites. In order to be successful, practitioners must have a good understanding of such skills as how to break projects into doable sub-tasks, setting priorities, and managing calendars at multiple sites.

CSP 515 Practicum in Counseling and Intervention Course Description

The Practicum in Counseling and Interventions Course (CSP 515) is designed to provide graduate students in counseling with their first counselee contact in a closely supervised setting. It is designed to help students begin to translate their academic understanding into actual counseling practice. Students complete a pre-determined number of hours of individual and group counseling in an approved public school field setting. While the CACREP and California Commission on Teacher Credentialing Standards require a minimum of 100 clock hours in a practica experience, Chapman University requires a minimum of 200 clock hours of fieldwork experience under the supervision of an experienced professional school counselor having a minimum of two years of school counseling experience and by a university practicum faculty supervisor. Additionally, graduate school counseling students enrolled in CSP 515 meet with their university faculty practicum supervisor for a minimum of 24 hours of group supervision and 2 hours of individual supervision.

CHAPMAN UNIVERSITY-SCHOOL COUNSELING PROGRAM

FIELDWORK/INTERNSHIP INSTRUCTIONS AND MATERIALS

CSP 620/621: Supervision and Mentoring in School Counseling I/II Course Description

CSP 620/621 is the primary field experience required of all graduate students in school counseling. The school counseling graduate internship is usually completed part time over the course of one academic year (fall and spring semesters), although candidates may complete their field experience full time over a single semester. School counseling graduate students take the internship at the end of their graduate program, generally their final two semesters. Supervision is provided by an on-site supervisor and a university faculty supervisor. The internship (CSP 620 and 621) requires a minimum of 600 clock hours, of which 240 must be in direct services. All hours must be completed within two years of beginning fieldwork. Candidates must complete a minimum of 200 clock hours at two of three school levels (elementary, middle, and high school). At least 400 clock hours must be completed and supervised in public school settings with K-12 pupils. A maximum of 200 of the 600 clock hours may be completed in an approved alternative setting outside the K-12 public schools.

School counselors need a broad background of knowledge, skills, and abilities if they are to function effectively. These cognitive and personal aspects need to become interwoven with practical experiences. The internship provides an opportunity for actual on-the-job exposure to specific functions of school counselors. Interns function as educational decision makers as they become actively involved in the implementation of comprehensive developmental school counseling programs. The comprehensive developmental model includes functions related to counseling, consultation, and coordination.

All fieldwork sites must be approved by the Program Coordinator or university faculty assigned to CSP 620 or CSP 621. Additionally, all internship activities are to be conducted in accord with the laws of the State of California, the ethical standards of the American Counseling Association (ACA) and the American School Counselor Association (ASCA), and the highest standards of professional behavior.

Final Performance Assessment

During the last two to three weeks of the semester, the progress of each fieldwork/internship student shall be assessed by the university faculty supervisor with strong input from the on-site supervisor(s). This assessment shall consider students' overall progress toward the fulfillment of the stated course requirements as well as their personal and professional performance in accordance with this manual and the course syllabus.

Final Supervisor Evaluation

The last piece of paperwork you need to complete when you are finished with your fieldwork/internship hours is a final supervisor evaluation. This evaluation also has a signature page, and cannot be accepted without all relevant signatures. In order to receive a passing grade for CSP 620/621, your average supervisor evaluation must be at least a 3 out of 4 across the professional domains (for individuals with more than one supervisor, there must be an average of at least 3 across both ratings). It is strongly recommended that you review this supervisor rating with your supervisor(s) early in the semester, in order to ensure that you each have a clear understanding of the progress you are expected to make across each domain by the end of CSP

620/621. It may also be helpful to informally review your progress and goals on any challenging domain areas midway through the semester.

Objectives

The internship experience provides school counseling graduate students the opportunities to:

- Receive practical experience in providing comprehensive guidance and counseling services in culturally diverse and dynamic school settings;
- Analyze and improve communication and counseling skills;
- Receive feedback from their supervisors (on-site and university) and other internship students to assist in improving communication and counseling skills;
- Learn methods for conducting a needs assessment survey for a school population and how to evaluate the effectiveness of school counseling programs;
- Learn how to plan and use effective time management skills as a counselor in a school setting;
- Identify specific areas of need, plan, facilitate, and evaluate small group counseling interventions:
- Plan, coordinate, and facilitate developmentally appropriate classroom guidance activities;
- Document computer technology skills (i.e. word processing, spreadsheet, database, and Internet communication) by developing a technology portfolio;
- Learn appropriate methods of interpreting assessment/test data to assist teachers, parents/guardians, and students;
- Establish and develop a networking system among school personnel, parents/guardians, students, and community resource providers;
- Become familiar with literature from ASCA, ACA, the California Association for Counseling and Development (CACD), the California Association of School Counselors (CASC), and the California Department of Education to ensure that goals, objectives, and activities of the counselor are consistent with those recommended by these professional organizations;
- Abide by the ethical standards of ACA, ASCA, and the laws of the state of California.
- Develop their professional identity as a school counselor through individual supervision from their on-site supervisor (minimum of one hour a week), group supervision from their university supervisor (minimum of an average of one and a half hours per week), and other professional activities (i.e., attending professional counseling conferences and workshops).
