Academic Advising Week

This week is Academic Advising Week. The law school is providing programming throughout the week geared toward helping continuing law students including a presentation by the Registrar's Office for current 1L student and a presentation on our clinical and externship programs by the directors of our clinical programs and Professor Larmore. In addition to programming, the second edition of The Red Book, the law school's academic advising handbook will be distributed to all students this week in preparation for registration over the summer. If you have questions about what classes you should take next year or want to review where you are in your academic program please contact Dean Kacer or Ian Jenkins for an academic advising appointment.

Next Week is Appreciation Week

Every year the law school hosts Appreciation Week. This tradition is relatively new to the law school but has quickly become one of our favorites. Everyone has busy lives with demands from school, work, family, and personal relationships pulling each of us in multiple directions. We often times forget to tell each other how important they are to our lives. This is an opportunity for the entire law school community, family, and personal relationships to come together to share our thanks and appreciation for each other. This is an opportunity for the entire law school community, family, and personal relationships to come together to share our thanks and appreciation for each other.

The law school's Admissions Office is seeking a full-time, seasonal recruiter to represent the law school at local, regional, and national recruiting and pre-law speaking events as needed, as well as administrative tasks at the law school.
