The underlying principle of Directed Research courses is that they are designed for superior students to meet specific academic objectives which are not provided for by regular curricular offerings. This course may be taken no more than twice and no more than once with the same professor.

The student may register for 1 to 3 credits. The student should spend a total of 40-50 hours of instruction and research for each credit of Directed Research. The full-time faculty member and the student will meet on a regular basis to discuss the progress of the paper.

Directed Research courses can be supervised only by full-time faculty members and can be taken only by matriculated students. These courses are limited to students in good academic standing only. All students must have a cumulative GPA of 2.6 or higher at the end of the first year to partake in a Directed Research project.
