

The Minor in Art History is designed for students seeking a broad exposure to the arts as an integral part of their liberal arts degree. The program allows them to augment their major with a series of courses that explore the history of diverse visual traditions in world culture and introduce art history's interdisciplinary, theoretical, and methodological strategies.

At the lower-division level, students choose two courses that provide broad overviews of these traditions, from ancient to modern. A wide range of upper-division elective courses offers more specialized content that explores the visual culture of particular periods and places in greater depth and from specific thematic perspectives.

Upon declaring the minor, students are assigned an advisor with whom they plan their course of study and electives.
