

Supported by Wilkinson College Dean's Office, the History Department, and the Delp-Wilkinson
Peace Lecture Series

The Peace and Justice Studies Department Presents:

Shared Humanity:

Conversations between Jews and Palestinians for a Better Tomorrow

Join us for conversations that reach across the divides of the Palestinian-Israeli conflict and strive for justice, security, freedom, and peace for all.

Day One: Continuing to Learn & Educate for Shared Humanity

Monday, Feb. 26, 2024 | 4:00 - 5:00 pm | Fish Interfaith Center

For two years Mira Sucharov, Jewish-Canadian political scientist, and Omar Dajani, Palestinian-American legal scholar, have traveled within, discussed the tough issues of, and written about this region and conflict. Their conversations demonstrate the difficulties, promises, and importance of developing friendships across the divide.

Day Two: Palestine/Israel Studies: Carving Out a New Intellectual Space

Tuesday, Feb. 27, 2024 | 4:00 - 5:00 pm | Fish Interfaith Center

Scholarship about Palestine/Israel has long been produced within separated scholarly associations, centers, and publications for Palestine studies and Israel studies. Tamir Sorek and Sonia Boulos have created and co-edited the new journal Palestine/Israel Review (begun 2024), which is an attempt to reshape the way we produce knowledge about Palestinians and Israelis. They examine the conditions necessary to build an intellectual community that considers Palestinians and Israelis as equals who belong to the same scholarly field.

CHAPMAN
UNIVERSITY

Wilkinson College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences

