Minor in Information Design

Recommended for Business & Science Majors

“Graphic design is complex combinations of words and pictures, numbers and charts, photographs and illustrations that, in order to succeed, demands the clear thinking of a particularly thoughtful individual who can orchestrate these elements so they all add up to something distinctive, or useful, or playful, or surprising, or subversive or somehow memorable.”

—Jessica Helfand

The Information Design Minor is recommended for science and business majors geared to create standards for the structuring, design and the use of task-related information. Standards for the structuring, design and use of information find their technical analogy in electronically supported information systems. Decisions concerning the necessary media mix for knowledge transfer in a given situation need to be based on task-specific user requirements. The capabilities of the media acting together in an information system depend on the depth, the breadth, the structure and the required interactivity of the information provided to support users in a task-specific way.

Students will be able to design quality information and information systems by creating relationships between people and information and by providing evidence that information is accessible and usable. The areas in which information designers become active may include education, health and financial services, transportation and city planning, data visualization, and accessibility to name a few. The minor will consist of theoretical foundations, key concerns and issues, core competencies and specializations, and the technologies and societal trends that will impact the work in information design in the future. Emphasis is placed on developing strong professional work and pathway exploration to graduate level inquiries.

Students must apply for a Minor in Information Design by providing eight samples of their art and/or design work and a one-page written rationale describing the student's interest in an Information Design Minor. The faculty will review the application for approval. The Information Design Minor is only for students majoring in another discipline at Chapman University. Before enrolling in certain courses, students have to formally be accepted and declare the associated minor to complete required prerequisites and/or get faculty approval. A minimum of 24 credits, at least 9 of which must be upper-division, are required for a Minor Information Design.
